$62.48 VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF

Obtained in Common Pleas Court by Norwich Grain Co. vs. Lafayette F. Maine—North Stonington Defendant Was His Own Attorney—Claimed He Had Overpaid Account by $138.57.

The case of the Norwich Grain company against Lafayette F. Maine of North Stonington was on trial here on Tuesday morning before Judge C. B. Waller and a jury. The company brought suit for a grain bill which it claimed Mr. Maine owed amounting to $62.48.

A counterclaim Mr. Maine asserted that he had traded with the company for 20 years and had overpaid them in the amount of $138.57. A verdict was reached late in the afternoon for the plaintiff to recover $62.48. The jury was out about 60 minutes.

Mr. Maine acted as his own lawyer and was opposed by Attorney C. V. James as counsel for the grain company.

The manager of the grain company Frank C. Sears was called to the stand and showed books from the ledger which showed the account against Mr. Maine. He was cross examined at length by the company's attorney, Mr. Norman, assistant clerk of the superior court, was called to the stand and produced the court records regarding cases in which Mr. Maine had appeared.

In his own behalf Mr. Maine was a witness pointing out where the accounts differed and trying to show that his side of the case was the correct one.

Arguments were made by both Attorney James and Mr. Maine before Judge Waller charged the jury and the case was given up to them.

FIRE IN BAKERY ON WHITE STREET.

William Fitzgerald Saw the Blaze and Rung in Alarm.

At 12.30 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning an alarm rung in from Box 228, North Main and Erin streets, called out the first department for a blaze in a small wooden building on White street, owned by John Dutkewski and occupied as a bakery. The alarm rang from the box on White street and the auto pumper from the Central station responded to the alarm and both made fast runs. Two lines of hose were laid and the fire was under control immediately.

The fire was discovered by William Fitzgerald who saw the reflection from his home on North Main street when he changed to look out of a window. He hurried up to White street and finding the building in flames ran to the box and pulled in the alarm. The fire must have been burning for some little time before it was discovered, for when the firemen arrived the interior of the building was a mass of flames which were breaking out through the sides and roof.

The building is a story and a half in height and of wooden frame construction, the lower section of the walls being of brick. The oven and mixing room were on the second floor and the upper part of the building was used for storing flour, etc., by the baker.

There was but little stock on hand, probably fifty loaves of bread, and a small quantity of flour. The baker distributes his wares in a push cart. In the rear of the building was a wooden barn in which were two horses and an Oldsmobile, owned by Mr. Dutkewski. These were allowed to remain in it as it was seen that the barn was not in danger.

Chief Stanton is to make an investigation today into the cause of the fire.

XENS APPOINT COMMITTEE FOR ANNUAL BANQUET.

Will Be One Feature of Year for First Baptist Church Society.

The Xena society of the First Baptist church held its regular meeting Friday evening with an attendance of about 50 members.

The society has as its special guests all who could come of those who assisted in the programme of the preceding meeting: Mrs. Charles Pierce, Mrs. Charles Burke, Mrs. Arthur F. Blackledge and William Case.

The president, Mrs. John B. Oat, presided at the meeting. The regular reports were read and approved.

A new member was voted into the society. It was voted to have the annual banquet at a time always looked forward to, and the following committee was named: Mrs. Minnie Amburn, chairman, Mrs. Charles Cobb, Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Arthur Armstrong, Mrs. John B. Oat and Stephen Peckham.

The entertainment committee for the next three months, appointed by the president, was as follows: Mrs. Herbert Willey, Mrs. Edward Crowell, Miss Katie Willey, John B. Oat and Walter M. Cowan.

Following the meeting, a programme of exceptional interest was enjoyed.

The society was treated to a travelling troupe by Frank Lathrop upon his Californian trip recently taken by him and Mrs. Lathrop. Mr. Lathrop was most interesting, the Xena wishing they might have the lecture again, when the entire evening could be given to it, impossible Friday because of other plans.

A Christmas exchange of gifts followed, which revealed gifts both wonderful and unique. Jokes added to the fun.

A banquet at a prettily Christmas-decorated table closed one of the most pleasing of the eleven Christmas evenings held by the society.

The following was the menu:

Escalloped Potatoes.
Ham.
Cabbage Salad.
Cranberry Sauce.
Rolls.
Coffee.

The retiring entertainment committee, which has given exceptionally interesting evenings, consists of Mrs. A. F. Howard, chairman, Mrs. Frank Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill and Mrs. Arthur F. Blackledge.

TO SAVE STATE MONEY ON COAL BILLS.

Tuberculosis Commission Decides Not to Place Orders Now.

The members of the state tuberculosis commission, at their meeting in the capitol, Monday, decided not to buy their annual supply of coal until May or June. They arrived at this decision on the advice of persons whom they believe, understand the coal situation. Their decision hinged on the possible development of a strike at the coal mines and a settlement. They have been advised that a strike, if it occurs in the early part of the year, will be settled in time to effect a reduction in the price of coal, and that by waiting they will save $1 per ton. The commissioners purchase for their four institutions in the neighborhood of 2,000 tons of coal annually. This would mean a saving of $2,000 for the state.

LAST DAY FOR 1915 AUTOMOBILE MARKERS.

Expiration Was on Monday—Hartford Post Office Suspended Delivery During Christmas Rush.

Monday was the last day on which automobile markers of 1915 could be used. The three days' grace allowed by the secretary of state expired with the close of the day. Owing to the large volume of Christmas business which the Hartford post office had to handle the Hartford officials were unable to distribute the markers to be delivered by parcel post and as a result a number of persons, who had applied and paid for their markers, did not receive them. In many instances the parcel post carriers were not able to find the persons to whom the packages containing the markers were addressed.

It was stated at the automobile department on Monday that the department was notified some days before Christmas that the post office could not take any more markers for delivery until after the holiday rush, and that at the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the department sent two wagon loads of markers to the Hartford post office to be delivered by parcel post.
